NATURAL LAW

Leadership within Natural Law	Natural Law of guilt
Natural Law of giving, sharing and inclusion	Learned guilt vs natural guilt
Capacity to give according to Natural Laws	Natural atonement – “I am sorry”
Knowledge vs belief	How to deal with natural guilt
Clashing beliefs	Patriarchal standard of God-perfection
Deviation – distortion – violation – perversion of Natural Law	Patriarchal self-judgment
Forces of evil	Law of attraction – “The Secret”
Extinction of the human race	Anger
Biological parents	Hate
Natural Law of evolution of consciousness	Fear of Natural Law
Natural Law and command of the Natural Goddess	Fear of losing Natural Laws
Natural Law of the trinity	Natural parenting
Natural Law of involution	Natural roles for men and women
Natural Laws of light, gravity, motion, magnetism, vibration, and heat	Gender switch
Natural Law of free choice	Male courting
Natural Law of separation	Nature
Natural Law of elimination	Daemon Soul
Natural Law: “Every action has a proportionate reaction”	Consciousness of plants
Natural Law of love	Archetype of judgment (Capricorn) manifesting through Pisces

Leadership within Natural Law

Aligned with Natural Law, there will simply be in most circumstances a natural leader for that circumstance, the person who is the “right one” to lead the way for that circumstance. They will not get attached to that role. In the next circumstance someone else may be the natural leader. Everyone involved would recognize and honor this natural principle. Those who were the more consistent “leaders” or elders or however they would be looked at, would have that position because they deserved it, due to their dedication to doing the right thing, their natural wisdom, the result of their level of evolution and their past with the same group of Souls. The basis of that leadership would be SERVICE, what I give back to the group, not the perks, privileges, benefits I get from being a leader. From what I have read, in the old days among the native people, if there was not enough food to go around, the chief did not eat. Everything was shared. There was not an entitled class who deserved more because of their leadership positions. These are what I would call natural hierarchies. They are self-evident, meaning it is clear why various people are in various roles – they have earned the right to be there, not bought or stolen or bribed their way into those positions. (Steve)

Natural Law of giving, sharing and inclusion

One thing I suggest reading is chapter 3 in Pluto Vol. 2, Social, Cultural, Parental, and Religious Imprinting. Think of the experiences – festivals, gatherings, workshops, etc. – you have attended, where people naturally cooperate and help each other rather than compete. (I used to go to events like that and wonder what would happen if everyone simply refused to go home – and started living that way all the time.) These are experiences in current times of Natural Law in action. Natural times were not utopian. Life was often hard. Food could be scarce. A tiger could eat your baby or your animals. Lightning could strike your hut. People lived in closer awareness of their dependency on nature for survival. That created a natural humility, and a sense of banding together as necessary for survival. We all lived through such times, and those memories are still within us. Some of it is finding the memories within, and paying attention to how they feel.

An important point is, Natural Law is Natural – we don’t really have to learn how to live that way – it’s the way we are actually wired, if only we stop listening to the distorted inner voices we’ve learned to let override how we naturally feel. Practicing listening to, and following, intuition is really important too. As is the work you are doing at getting to the root of the distorted patterns so you can begin releasing them. And remember, it took a long time to create the distorted patterns. The path back from distorted to natural can take less time than the path from natural to distorted, because it IS natural. But it does take time, because we have learned the distorted patterns very well. Practicing kindness and patience with self on the slow but steady journey back to natural is also really valuable. (Steve)

Capacity to give according to Natural Laws

In Natural Laws, the Laws set in motion by the Source Of All Thing, one of those laws relative to human beings, is to give, share, and include. Thus, when humans live in accordance with Natural Laws all will give according to their capacity, and the natural roles each human has in the context of the social whole that they are part of. Sadly, this Natural Law has been perverted and turned upside down. That Natural Law has now become one of self-interest and exclusion which is not a Natural Law at all. As a Soul progressively de-conditions from all the man-made and artificial conditioning that has been manifesting since around 7,000 BCE forwards the Natural Law, and desire, to give, share and include begins to resurface into the consciousness of the Soul. Thus, it is a function, to give, share, and include, of evolution itself relative to the patriarchal times that we all have been living in for a long time. The process, evolutionarily speaking, of de-conditioning allows the natural desire in all souls to give, etc, to manifest. (Rad)

Knowledge vs belief

The operative word is BELIEFS. People can conjure up anything and make themselves believe it. Once they do that then the nature of whatever those ‘beliefs’ are become the determinant of how they interpret the nature of actual (natural) reality. They become the basis of what they come to value, and what they come to value then becomes the basis of the MEANING for their lives. In combination this then becomes the causative factor in judgments: internal and external. This is very important for all of us to understand for in NATURAL LAWS, the actual laws that have been set in motion by what we call God'ess, does not require BELIEFS whatsoever. It does require knowledge, TO KNOW, what has actually been created by what we call God'ess. To know is very different than believing anything. When Jesus said, for example, 'When thy eye is single one's whole body is full of light.' This does not require believing that. This natural truth or law can indeed be experienced within oneself by simply shallowing and suspending the breath. At that point the Soul KNOWS this truth. It does not believe it, because it knows it. (Rad)

Clashing beliefs

Q. People will believe just about anything. How do we deal with a clash of beliefs? Eg Person A's knowledge based on Natural Laws clashing with Person B's beliefs based on something else.

A. Knowledge is not a function of beliefs. Beliefs do not equal knowledge. For the vast majority of humans who are defined by beliefs where beliefs are linked with the psychological need to feel secure, self-consistent, this of course leads to all the horrible conflicts that humans then create for themselves because of the psychological need to impose their specific beliefs on others who do not hold those beliefs. Thus, others are then perceived as threatening to one's beliefs because this then challenges the need to feel secure: self-consistent. This is why 'religion' is one of the core causes of all conflicts and wars between peoples where religion is simply a combination of various cosmological beliefs. Knowledge is that which is internally realized. Thus, knowledge is just that: knowledge and not beliefs. Knowledge DOES NOT NEED TO BE BELIEVED IN. Knowledge just is. It can only be realized and NOT INVENTED. The vast majority of humans live in a state of delusional beliefs of one sort or another. Thus, they clash for the reasons just discussed. In my view, the best way to deal with this clashing of beliefs is simply to stand aside and let humans do what humans do. If any person actually asks another for some sort of perspective of something, some way of understanding something, of what one knows versus believes then go ahead and share whatever that is because, after all, one is asking the other. This is very different than most humans who simply impose their blathering beliefs on all others. So for those that need to clash in this way, so be it. For myself, I will stand aside unless asked by another something that they want or need from me. (Rad)

Q. The reason I ask this question is because it is overwhelming the amount of 'stuff' out there, and as you say Natural Laws are very simple.

A. Right, and most of that 'stuff' is delusional beliefs and ideas that, in the end, evaporate into the nothingness in which they manifested in the first place. It is just the normal blather that the egocentric structures of most Souls need to generate in order to fill up the inner void that has been created in most because of not making the internal effort to actually KNOW that which is defined by the Natural Laws set in motion at the moment of the manifested Creation by the Source Of All Things. (Rad)

Deviation – distortion – violation – perversion of Natural Law

Natural Law as set in motion by the Creator contains within it the possibility of 'deviation.' Thus, deviation from Natural Law is part of Natural Law. Natural Law as contained within manifested creation when it was set in motion was imperfect, and hence, Natural Law also needed to be changed (Sagittarius) by the Creator, as a consequence of the Creator's evolution. And that's because the nature of the Creator, as Wolf taught in his lifetime, is in fact not perfect. The very origin of 'imperfection' is the Origin of Creation Itself. (Rad)

As the patriarchy began, and has increased, there has been a progressive violation of all Natural Laws, the consequences of which all humans are being subjected to. As Wolf taught for so long, the term 'matriarchy' is really a word that symbolizes the vast majority of human her/history in which the human life form was living in accordance with all Natural Laws, and every other life form was. Thus, a state of balance on this Earth. And that, included, of course the Natural Laws of the masculine and feminine principles, laws, created by the Creator. The patriarchy is a word that thus symbolizes a progressive violation of these Natural Laws, and the consequences to that fact. The core Natural Law that has been violated in the Natural Law of 'giving, sharing, and inclusion' to 'self-interest' and 'exclusion.' That core violation has led to the totality of what we all are experiencing now. (Rad)

[The Oil gush/spill] Events like this are not necessarily God's will. That perspective is too commonly used to excuse things that are flat out wrong, to avoid staring into the face of the consequences of human choices, behaviors. God gave us free will within certain ranges, to either align ourselves with Divine intent or to override and deny Divine intent and act in our selfish little ways (by "our" I mean by humans collectively). Just because something is within the realm of possibility does not mean people acting that out are actualizing God's will. Like the president of Goldman Sachs, a firm that has brought much of the world to its financial knees, who was quoted as saying that Goldman Sachs was doing God's work. Don't forget, God is the origin of the possibility of evil also. In that sense doing what is inherently wrong can be part of God's will, but is that really the part of God, the lower negative selfish possibilities, that you want to align yourself with, or make excuses for other humans and organizations who do that? "Violation of Natural Law" means acting in a way that puts self or self-interest or the interests of a few ahead of the greater interests of the whole, human and planet-wide. We don't HAVE to keep making the same sort of limited selfish stupid choices that inevitably wind up in wide scale loss and pain to all sorts of little people who never benefited from the vast fortunes made by the few in the first place (like oil companies). (Steve)

In Natural Law Saturn, Capricorn, and the 10th house all correlate to the total structure of Natural Laws as manifesting in the time/space reality that we call Earth. On the other hand, they also correlate to the total perversion of those Natural Laws where those perversions have been caused by men through time. And, thus, what we call the patriarchy. So ever since the patriarchy began to emerge way back in the past this progressive perversion has in fact defined the vast majority, the Consensus evolutionary stage, right up until this moment in time. (Rad)

The essence of patriarchal distortion is that we have come to accept as normal what in fact is quite distorted. To the point that most people, when presented with what is actually natural, find it odd, primitive, strange, uncomfortable, not normal-feeling. Because next to nothing in modern life is natural. Natural is giving, sharing, inclusion, cooperation. Distortion is self-interest, domination/submission, hierarchy, superiority/inferiority, etc. (Steve)

Forces of evil

I don't feel what is playing out by way of the patriarchal extreme is due to another time of inequity from another time. And that's because there never was another time of inequity linked with the natural feminine principle: women. Previous to the time of the patriarchal transition the gender definitions of male and female were in fact NATURAL: natural feminine and natural masculine as reflected in their natural roles in every way. This perversion that the men/patriarchy has created leading to the utter imbalance that it has is due, to me, by the forces of evil. When we remember that evil, Lucifer, can only be sustained as long as delusions are in place within humans then we can see how evil manifests within humans in this way: the total dominance of one gender over another. How many folks realize, for example, that of all the property that is 'owned' in the world today that only one percent or less is 'owned' by women? And, to me, I do not ever see a time in the future in which this will change, to come back to a state of natural balance as defined by Natural Laws. (Rad)

Extinction of the human race

To me the human race has made choices, and will continue to make choices, until it is too late, that will lead to its extinction. And the root of that cause, to me, is the utter delusion of self-interest equaling exclusion versus the Natural Laws of giving, sharing, and inclusion. This was, indeed, the cause of the patriarchy in the first place when men realized that they had an equal role in making babies with women. And what that then set in motion, which prevails to this day. Of course I hope I am completely wrong in my judgment that all will now lead to the extinction of the human species. Yet, it is what I feel in my bones. (Rad)

Biological parents

Q. This is a question about the relevance of knowledge/information about the biological father. During natural times, before the patriarchal family existed, in the vast majority of cases who the biological father was of any born child was irrelevant. Even, most men didn't know they contributed to children being born. And this was not relevant because parenting was communal. Patriarchy implied a big change in this, in that the nuclear family, biological fatherhood, virginity of the bride and monogamy of the woman became the basis of social structure. This implied many changes within relationships, like the meaning of commitment and the meaning of honesty, in relation with expectations of monogamy when they exist.

When the biological father is other than the 'apparent' father, ie the woman's couple, the woman's concealment of this fact would be reflected in the Yod pattern existing between Gemini (information, duplicity), Scorpio (genes, sex, secret) and Capricorn (family structure, patriarchy, society). This implies the potential for a crisis in the structure of the family. Some psychoanalysts speak of an instability generated within the psychic structure that has the potential to derive in psychosis. They say this instability, and potential psychosis, would exist either for the woman or for the next generation or two. My feeling is this type of consequence can exist in some cases, but not always.

The Yod between Gemini and Scorpio/Capricorn implies the potential for manipulations around the 'secret,' ie the Soul building protecting structures to prevent this critical piece of information to be known, by means of exclusions, further lies, or other means. Also, in most cases the dishonesty with the husband will create a fracture in the relationship, which will prevent true intimacy. These two dynamics can create some type of instability for the children. Beyond this, I don't feel there are any necessary consequences implied in such concealment, other than the karmic consequences for the mother. Is this correct?

(Gonzalo)

A. Yes. (Rad)

Natural Law of evolution of consciousness

The totality of Consciousness correlates with Neptune/Pisces, and the 12th house. And within that totality of Consciousness lies its total potential: of what can be realized. Virgo of course is the natural polarity of Pisces. That correlates, archetypically, to LACK where lack is in reference to the total potential that has yet to be realized. Immutable consciousness simply means energy, as Jeffrey pointed out, and that energy cannot be destroyed: it can only change form. It is inherently full of potential to be realized which is the causative factor for the evolution of the Soul: consciousness. Until that full potential of consciousness is realized the Soul necessarily experiences LACK because LACK infers or reflects THE DESIRE FOR MORE than we currently have. The desire for more infers DISSATISFACTION which is the evolutionary determinant for that which will correlate to total SATISFACTION. Total satisfaction correlates with the desire to return to the SOURCE of consciousness and/or the Soul which is held as potential within the Soul and the consciousness within it. Thus, the sense of lack IS ESSENTIAL FOR IT PROMOTES THE ONGOING EVOLUTION OF THE SOUL IN ORDER TO REALIZE IT'S TOTAL POTENTIAL WHICH, IN THE END, IS TO CONSCIOUSLY UNITE ITSELF WITH ITS SOURCE: GOD/ESS. (Rad)

Natural Law and command of the Natural Goddess

A natural emotion specific to Neptune, etc., is one of empathy where empathy allows us to truly understand the emotional realities and needs of others. And within this emotion the DESIRE to help others in the ways that we naturally can without any other motive or agenda attached to it: to give to others what they actually need in the best ways that we can. This then allows the Soul to evolve because it is one of the Natural Laws and 'commands' of the natural Goddess to do so. The deepest degree of this Natural Law and the emotion of it is to ALWAYS PUT OTHERS FIRST no matter what the consequences may be to oneself: think of Jesus here for example of an ultimate manifestation of this. (Rad)

Natural Law of the trinity

The Natural Law of the trinity does apply to EA. Very simply when one combines with another one we have three. A simple example would be sperm and ovum. When they combine they produce a brand new organism. And of course the number three is the root number for all advanced math. It is in the union, combining, of the singular one's that then produces three. Union thus becomes the causative factor, or determinant, of evolution itself: genetic evolution through the RNA and DNA of all living organisms. Through this Natural Law we then can see, via the EA paradigm, and existing state of evolution as symbolized in the natal position of Pluto, its polarity point that is then united with, which in turn allows for an evolution of the existing state of evolution relative to the natal position of that Pluto.

Same thing as applied to the existing South Node of the Moon, its North Node, that thus evolves the South Node itself. (Rad)

The natural evolutionary progression always involves the Natural Law of the trinity. The natal position of, for example, Pluto operates from birth relative to how the Soul comes into the current life from where it has been: there is a natural polarity point to this that symbolizes the core evolutionary intent. As the Soul moves, evolves, towards that intent it then simultaneously EVOLVES the orientation of the natal position of Pluto itself. Thus, the Natural Law of the trinity. We must remember that any house or sign is an entire archetype: a full spectrum within itself. As evolution proceeds within any archetype the various orientations within that spectrum are embraced as a result. (Rad)

Natural Law of involution

God will continue in its own journey to its own perfection. In this beyond long journey what we call God expands and contracts over lengths of time that we cannot even imagine. This natural expansion and contraction corresponds with the collapse of the entire Creation which leads to yet another expansion manifesting as a new form of Creation. Thus the cycles of creation/evolution occur in this natural way. When the cycle of contraction occurs this is called the Natural Law of involution where all existing forms born in the expansion cycle are destroyed, and then reformulated energetically in yet another cycle of expansion and the forms of how creation looks like in each one. (Rad)

Natural Laws of light, gravity, motion, magnetism, vibration, and heat

Intrinsic to Creation is CONSCIOUSNESS because of course what we call God is CONSCIOUS. The dimensions of each Creation called, in our terms, the Cosmos and Universes are so vast that we simply cannot comprehend from the limitation of the consciousness contained within the human form. And within that vastness all of the Natural Laws that God has SET IN MOTION in each cycle of Creation manifest in all kinds of different ways depending on Light, Gravity, Motion, Magnetism, Vibration, and Heat. Depending on CONDITIONS defined by these Natural Laws as they interact within themselves as found at various points throughout the vastness of the totality of the Creation Consciousness can take hold and root itself. This we call life. (Rad)

Natural Law of free choice

All things, phenomena, have been set in motion by the Creator including the possibility of 'excess of will.' And that is due to the Natural Law of 'free choice' that the Creator is responsible for Creating in the first place. (Rad)

The choices that humans have made, which has led to NOW, the reality of NOW, are that which is responsible for what the reality is that we are all living in NOW. The effect of the collective choices upon all individuals within that collective, even when certain percentages of humans have rebelled or disagreed with the vast majority of other humans who have made those choices. This has nothing to do with whether we are 'here' or 'not here.' It has everything to do with what the nature of 'here' is, now at this point in time. I am not saying it is 'negative' to be here at all. God/ess is the origin of all things, and is thus responsible for that fact. The fact of Creation, of creating anything, including the Natural Law of free choice. That law exists within all forms of the Creation, and those choices start with the evolutionary imperative to survive. It is because the human life form began to make choices 8,000 years ago now that started to violate all the Natural Laws, through the vehicle of free choice, that the survival of the species itself is now in question when projected into the future, based on the choices that have led to now: the past leading to the present. If humans had continued to make choices that we all in accordance with all the Natural Laws up until this moment in time then the very nature of the reality that we are all living now would be utterly different. And that difference would start with the human life form still being in a state of balance with the totality of the Creation, with the totality of all other living things on this planet. Humans would still be living a reality whose bottom line choices would revolve around 'giving, sharing, and inclusion.' Imagine – just imagine if that were true. (Rad)

Natural Law of separation

The natural desire to separate was put in motion by the Creator itself. That's why it is natural. The intention within this as designed by the Creator was for all aspects of the Creation that had conscious awareness to realize, consciously realize, that in their APPARENT separateness that defined their sense of individuality, that their origins, where they came from, what their essence was/is, is the Creator itself. Within this core awareness is the awareness that all of the manifested Creation is thus interrelated and interdependent. All is part of the whole. It is a Natural Law. When humans lived in this way for the balance of its history until recent times, they were thus living in a reality that was defined by 'giving, sharing, and inclusion' which equaled their need for survival as individuals, and as groups of people. When this natural desire of separateness became perverted this Natural Law of giving, sharing, and inclusion changed to self-interest, and exclusion. Step back for a moment and imagine realities created by humans that were defined by the Natural Law of giving, sharing, and inclusion versus the realities that have been created by self-interest and exclusion. The stark relief created in this comparison should speak for itself.

A simple example: American Indians hunting for buffalo. Once the buffalo was killed the Indian would pray for the buffalo and thank it for providing food for the tribe in the understanding of how the WHOLE was interrelated, and how each part of that whole was dependent for survival on that whole. Now compare this to the White man, under the delusion of Manifest Destiny which itself manifested from their MAN-CREATED, not God-created, version of Christianity. And how the White man almost brought to extinction the entire buffalo species in its greed defined by self-interest and exclusion, ie the White man in its delusive self-importance and superiority to all that was NOT HIM having zero awareness of the WHOLE. Thus all other aspects of the Creation were to serve its own self-interest defined by others who threatened that self-interest. When the buffalo was killed it was left to rot on the ground that it was killed after its hide had been removed. This simple example of the perversion of the natural desire to separate could be exemplified in literally thousands of ways. And it is because it can, the actual reality that has been created leading right up to the present moment, that humans have guaranteed their extinction. The Creator is also the origin of course of free choice. And it is through choice making that all of us are responsible for what we create. (Rad)

Natural Law of elimination

The integration point between the dual nature of desires within all of our Souls is elimination. Eliminating, in the end, all separating desires to the exclusion of the only desire that can remain, and that desire of course is to reunite with that which is the Cause of Creation. The means for evolution to take place is based on this Natural Law of elimination within the Soul as reflected progressively in the egos that it creates from life to life. (Rad)

Natural Law: Every action has a proportionate reaction

Q. Exactly what does this mean, "Every action sets off a counter action at the opposite end of the scale"?

A. This simply means that every ACTION has a PROPORTIONATE REACTION. Natural Law. Example: If I stretch out a rubber band to its maximum before breaking and then let it go the reaction to the initiated action of the stretching will be of the same strength, or close to it, as it took to stretch it to its maximum. If I take the same rubber band and stretch it out to only half of what is possible relative to the maximum stretch, then when I let it go the reaction will be proportionate to how much energy it took to stretch it to only that far. When I let it go the reaction will mirror that. If I decide to walk out my door and shoot somebody for the fun of it then it is just as possible for someone that I did not see to shoot me in reaction to what I just did. If not right away, then down the line at some point. (Rad)

I was reminded of something Jeffrey said many times: "All evolution is preceded by involution." Involution means existing forms go out of form – must be destroyed. Then new forms can come forth. Every new evolution contains within itself the seeds of its own eventual involution, to be replaced by yet another evolution. This is just how life works, which is validated by our endless life experiences. In creating something new, we are effectively destroying something old. Every book sold on Amazon is one less book sold in the existing form we call a local bookstore. This global change in how books are sold causes local book stores to have to evolve – mutate – to survive in these new conditions. Many who try to stay the same wind up closing down. We can have opinions on whether this global change is good or bad (it might be both at the same time) but regardless, once something new is set in motion there is no stopping the consequences. We can't go backwards. And change inevitably results in the destruction of some of what has been before. [In terms of astrology] to me it's an intrinsic principle that is inherent in all signs/planets, in that everything is evolving towards its polarity. Taurus to Scorpio, Gemini to Sag, etc. We also have the planetary nodes. The South Node of Mars is the past Mars. The current Mars is the present life Mars, which in the present life is evolving towards its polarity. The North Node of Mars is the future Mars. The current life Mars represents the current expression of what has come before. It evolves towards its polarity. That is the current life conscious expression of the deeper long term movements of Mars towards its North Node. It also brings to mind the cycle of phases and aspects. Everything begins in seed form at the new phase conjunction. That conjunction contains all that has come before it, yet it is also a new beginning. At the other end, we have the balsamic phase conjunction, which is the very end of a whole cycle of becoming, that which is approaching going out of form. Which is shortly followed by the new phase conjunction, new things/attitudes/behaviors coming into form. Pluto/Scorpio symbolizes the death-rebirth process. (Steve)

Natural Law of love

In the totality of creation, there are natural structures set in place by the creator. An example of this would be the spiritual reality of angels, devas, nature spirits, etc. Also all the various saints and spiritual guides that serve a unique function and role in creation, and this includes the natural wisdom of any Soul who has lived a full life in alignment with Natural Law. One thing that Capricorn teaches is the appropriateness of time and space. Different "rules" operate at different size scales. The only law that does not change is the Law of Love. Love is the guiding motivation of creation itself. I feel in essence, the Capricorn archetype reveals how we are meant to appropriately structure our existence in alignment with Natural Law, which is an expression of Love, as human beings here on earth. (Ari Moshe)

Natural Law of guilt

Natural guilt (no different than putting a baby on the autobahn) is just naturally wrong. And that creates the natural guilt as a result. Yet, unless that natural guilt is 'owned' or internalized the appropriate, natural, adjustment cannot be made. So these folks have a natural reaction or response that reflects this natural guilt yet, at the same time, DENY that guilt BECAUSE OF THE CONSEQUENCES of what owning that guilt would create and necessitate. A typical inner response to this would be something like "yes, I know this is true, but there is nothing I can really do about it. It's just too large of an issue for me to make any difference at all. It's just the way things are now. So I can only accept what is." It is precisely this kind of inner reaction within countless individuals in the face of all that is Naturally Wrong that, of course, allows all that is naturally wrong to be sustained. And that, of course, is how evil continues to 'win.' And the consequences of that 'winning,' then means the long term damage to the internal anatomy and physiology of all who consume food 'produced' in this way (inorganically). And what is the common dominator in this evil: money. Yet again. One form of that man-made teaching is the Christian doctrine called 'original sin' wherein somehow humans separated themselves from God. Or from a Jewish point of view the fact they were the 'chosen' people and, thus, must 'suffer' because of this 'fact.' And, from an Eastern point of view the total misuse of the word, and application of that word, 'karma.'

All of this crap is a total distortion of the Natural Laws, including the Natural Law of guilt. Natural guilt does indeed induce a 'feeling' that we did something wrong because of violating some Natural Law. And it is that feeling that then draws us inward to reflect on whatever our action or behavior was to induce that feeling. And then by going into that feeling it promotes realization, the realization of what Natural Law was violated. This is the natural way of learning induced by natural guilt. The person realizes it FROM WITHIN THEMSELVES. No one needs to be hammered over the head with harsh words about how 'bad' we are because we have 'violated' some man-made law. In fact when man-made laws have the effect of suppressing something that is natural, some natural behavior, that then becomes the basis of anger and rage. When anger and rage are induced because of this they, in turn, induce distortion: distorted behavior based on that which has been repressed because of the man-made law. (Rad)

Relative to the archetype of atonement linked with guilt each Soul reacts, and thus makes choices, differently. The natural process leading any Soul to finally be free of needing to atone for whatever guilt, natural or unnatural, is different for all Souls. And, of course, much depends on the very nature of the causative factors for the guilt in the first place: the extent and extremity of it. If any given Soul were responsible, say, for the deaths of a great many people due to its negligence how long would it take for such a Soul to stop atoning for this fact? If it were you, how long do you think that might be? If it were someone else, how long do you think it may take for that person to be free of atoning for such a guilt? There is just no way to know. Each Soul is different. The key issue here is whether the guilt is natural or not. (Rad)

When guilt occurs to a Soul that is natural then the very nature of that guilt, the events that have caused it, will stay within the Soul forever. It does this so that the Soul will never repeat the causes or actions that lead to the natural guilt. On the other hand, any guilt that is within the Soul that is not natural can and will be expelled from the Soul at some point. Thus when dealing with clients it is very important to understand this critical difference which then dictates how a client dealt with relative to a therapeutic approach. (Rad)

Learned guilt vs natural guilt

JWG made a critical distinction relative to the archetype of masochism because it can have two distinct causes. One cause is what he, and others, call spiritual masochism wherein the Soul is consciously and with intent 'sacrificing' its Soul for the benefit of others no matter what the personal cost to the Soul may be. The other cause is of course rooted in the need to atone for a sense of guilt because the Soul feels within itself that it has done something wrong which then necessitates the need to atone for that guilt. In both of these forms of masochism the 'wounding' that correlates with Chiron is thus based on the Soul having no boundaries or limits relative to the desire to help or heal others in the ways that are consistent with the evolutionary condition of the Soul: that which is possible because of the evolutionary condition or state of the Soul. When Chiron is manifesting itself through guilt and the need to atone for that guilt it is imperative, for those who are working with Chiron, to understand the difference between 'learned' guilt and natural guilt. Learned guilt occurs when a Soul is subjected to all kinds of projected judgments from others where the nature of those judgments are rooted in artificial or man-made laws that are temporal in nature. It can also occur by way of an inner self-judgment as the Soul measures or judges itself against these same man-made laws in which they forever come up short.

In both cases this leads to the inner voice of 'there must be something wrong with me' in which the Soul then needs to 'atone' which then leads to the masochism inherent within Chiron. Natural guilt is a guilt that is rooted in that which is naturally right and wrong relative to all the Natural Laws that have been set in motion by the Creator in the first place. When a Soul transgresses these Natural Laws a state of natural guilt will occur. When this natural guilt manifests within the archetype of Chiron the need to atone for that natural guilt occurs. And that can then lead to the two forms of masochism that JWG taught. When working with those who are manifesting psychological or pathological masochism relative to their Chiron it is imperative to help them understand the difference between learned guilt versus natural guilt. Natural guilt will always remain in the Soul because that is how the Soul learns to do what is inherently right and wrong according the Natural Laws set in motion by the Creator. Learned guilt is that which can be jettisoned from the Soul because, after all, this type of guilt IS NOT NATURAL. In this way a healing of the wounds that correlate with Chiron can occur. It is also imperative that one understands the difference between pathological or psychological masochism versus what Green called 'spiritual masochism.' Spiritual masochism is a conscious choice by the Soul to sacrifice whatever wounds may occur to it by way of a pure giving to others ON THEIR BEHALF, ON GOD'S BEHALF. When this is the case it just is. There is nothing to heal or to change. JWG was the only one to my knowledge that taught that Chiron can also correlate to the wounding of others that then leads to a necessary guilt, and the need to atone for it NATURALLY. (Rad)

On the flip side, Chiron will also correlate to the possibility and often the past karma of a Soul creating such guilt and wounding for others. The nature of that would stem from a core denial of one's inner reality/condition by way of projecting that outwards towards others. This is how this would play out in patriarchal times where there are such strong distorted notions of absolute perfection and its implied polarity of fatal imperfection. The reality of having triggered wounding for others in the past can also be a cause for the Chiron guilt – and thus the psychological need to atone for that guilt. The integration of the Chiron archetype in a healthy way seems to entail a process of step by step healing which directly necessitates doing that which brings up the most pain while so doing it. In so doing, the Soul can receive the feedback/criticism of its environment and make necessary adjustments. Thus the Soul learns to bridge a higher spiritual purpose into this world by consciously integrating that purpose in a way that is pragmatic and focused – all rooted in deep self-acceptance. This produces in the end a great degree of compassion and ability to serve others, even in the midst of seemingly painful inner or outer circumstances. This can only be done through the vehicle of being willing and comfortable with one's own pain so that the Chiron work can evolve into selfless service without any martyrdom associated with it. (Ari Moshe)

This is essentially correct yet 'martyrdom' can also be a function of a Soul who has made a conscious choice to sacrifice itself on behalf of others no matter what the personal cost may be to the Soul who has made such a choice: spiritual masochism. (Rad)

Natural atonement – "I am sorry"

Natural atonement can be as simple as saying "I am sorry" to whatever the natural corrective action would be relative to the NATURE of the transgression of whatever Natural Law itself. If I steal something from you what would be the natural corrective action? And so on. (Rad)

How to deal with natural guilt

The best way to deal with it is to orientate to Soul to create conditions in its life that were the very causes that lead to the natural guilt in the first place, and then to do all that is possible to do the naturally right things in the face of those conditions. Everybody has natural guilt in varying degrees in their Soul. No Soul is 'perfect.' (Rad)

I was deeply struck when I first saw this, years ago in the movie Gandhi. More and more I understand why. It is such an example of this principle. During that fast, toward the end of the Gandhi movie, a devout Hindu came to Gandhi and said, "I am going to hell." Gandhi asked, "Why?" He said he had killed a Muslim boy during the violence that sprang up as the country was being divided into India and Pakistan. Gandhi replied, "I know a way out of hell. Find a child whose parents were killed in the violence and raise it. Only make sure it is a Muslim child and raise it as a Muslim." Think of the implications of a devout Hindu raising a child as a Muslim, and the effect that would have on the Hindu man's natural guilt, and also the effect on the child's Soul, whose parents had been murdered by Hindus. (Steve)

Another way one can make up for transgressions is, as one's life gradually changes, to remind other sincere Souls who struggle with a similar inner darkness that there is indeed a way out. This human life is often hard. But there is ALWAYS a path back to God/Goddess for sincere Souls ready to take the necessary steps, which start with owning where we have been. (Steve)

Patriarchal standard of God-perfection

Every one of us has places we don't want to see or look at, feel like we are farther along than we really are, etc. These are universal human conditions. Wolf would say since all things originate from God, what does this say about the actual nature of God, when all people have these same traits. His answer is it points to the inherent imperfection in God itself. And we judge ourselves using a patriarchal standard of God-perfection which no human anywhere throughout time has ever lived up to. Thus the need to be very kind to ourselves, to recognize how difficult it is to walk this path. And to recommit to it again and again, no matter how many times we stray or fall down. To pick self back up and get back on the pathway, that is the way. In the end, however long it takes, mastery over self is assured. It's just that it takes a long time – that has to be accepted. (Steve)

Patriarchal self-judgment

The natural principle of life is diversity – same source, myriad of outer forms. This is why EA talks a lot about Natural Law. In patriarchy, things are judged as good or bad relative to human-created standards of what is right and wrong and how things should be. That is the opposite of accepting diversity as it was created. Over lifetimes of rejection for being the way they are, Souls become wounded and come to have distorted self-images of who and what they are. Thus they come to internalize deep self-judgments based on internalizing experiences they've had within the patriarchal realities. They come to believe the distortions they have been subjected to are in fact real. Thus they hide away "unacceptable" parts of who they are, and adopt personas that try to conform to society's expectations of proper behavior, pretending (even to self) to be what they are not. That right there is the root of our individual issues. The way out is the path back to accepting self the way one was created by God, regardless of what anyone thinks about it. (It's a path that requires a lot of courage.) (Steve)

Law of attraction – “The Secret”

The Secret wasn't any “secret” and, to me, it's just the New Age version of Christian guilt. You're not getting wealthy, healthy, the new job, whatever it is we want – because we don't BELIEVE enough – we don't PRAY hard enough. We don't envision already having what we want, or we don't use enough emotion, you're not TRYING HARD ENOUGH, etc., etc., etc., ad nauseum – just reinforcing the person's guilt and/or deep sadness because they haven't been able to manifest whatever it is they want. Think of what this does to the person whose karma/evolutionary necessity demand that they NOT have whatever it is they're trying to manifest – more guilt, more anger, more feelings of helplessness and hopelessness. The underlying premise that we need to and can change our thoughts to change our reality is valid, but it, too, somehow got distorted by tying it to man-made beliefs about what life is “supposed to look like/be.” And again, it's getting back to the Natural God, the natural way of doing things, and the way things naturally are that will actually bring us to our own inner state of balance and grace. Sometimes we're going to get eaten by the lion, and sometimes we're going to be the one feasting on the filet. The bottom line that JWG always went back to were the words of Jesus to seek God first, put God first, and what you need will be given to you. And that seeking needs to be sincere and consistent. Such a simple concept, and yet if we're honest with ourselves, it's much harder to pull off. But as JWG also said many times, “The value is in the effort.” (Adina)

Anger

Of course anger could be part of the Lucifer effect. But the source of anger can be much more than that. Living in a patriarchal, unnatural reality as we do, anyone attuned to the natural is going to, at times, feel deep anger over the distortions that have occurred and continue occurring, due to the sense of the violations of Natural Law simply feeling “not right.” Not to mention the personal pain and traumas we have experienced, as a result. Anger does exist within Natural Law – it has its natural purposes. Like everything else, it can get distorted and misapplied. (Steve)

Hate

Hate correlates with Scorpio, the 8th house, and Pluto. It is a natural emotion. If the hate is being triggered because of conditions and/or events, there are many ways to deal with it, not just one way. All depends on the actual nature of such events and/or conditions. If such events and/or conditions are rooted in violations of Natural Laws then one can be pretty hard pressed to be free of it in meditation although, of course, it is possible. The guilt reaction to hate, itself, can be caused by many factors, not just one. It does not mean that things like rape, murder, etc. are natural at all. Hate is an emotion from within consciousness, the Soul that can be triggered by various external phenomena. What any given Soul does because of the emotion of hate, or anger which is another natural emotion, is up to that Soul. In patriarchal realities this can of course lead to things like murder and so on. Patriarchal realities are for the most part total distortions and perversions of Natural Laws. Thus, when a natural emotion like hate or anger is triggered within a Soul it can then manifest through these distorted realities in horrible ways like murder and so on. Hate is not a desire. It is an emotion that can be triggered by phenomenal events, or it can be triggered even as hate towards oneself by way of judging oneself against various standards that trigger the self-hate. One can see where the sign Scorpio is in any given chart, where Pluto is and/or Scorpio planets, and the sign on the 8th house cusp and the location of its planetary ruler by way of its own house, sign, and aspects to it that can all act as triggers for inner or outer hate. For example, if one had Gemini on the 8th house cusp one could feel ‘jealous’ of another's intellectual abilities that could then lead to ‘hating’ that person.

Nature is not human centered, indeed, and yet they are part of the totality of Nature. The fact that hatred can manifest in humans, as well as animals, has nothing to do whether a consciousness is distorted or not: the fact is it manifests and exists. Hatred does manifest in certain animals such as chimpanzees and other forms of the monkey kingdom for example. Humans are in fact part of the totality of Nature and humans have the emotion of hate within them which is simply an intensification of anger. Hate manifests from anger. It is a natural emotion, not one born simply of distortions. When hate is projected on another, humans or chimpanzees, that other can then become an enemy. In humans and chimpanzees an enemy can be attacked and killed because of the hate. Chimpanzees can not only kill other chimpanzees because of being enemies, but they can also kill humans. They can even kill humans who want to own them as pets. When these things happen it has nothing to do with 'abstractions.' Ask any human when they are in the emotion of hate if they feel they are in an abstract state, or, in fact, in an emotional state. (Rad)

Fear of Natural Law

Where the person is trying to overturn the hold of the superstitious past, belief in religions and all the things that have held the race back, they have created science and technology as a new religion (although they rarely recognize that they have done this) that is going to save us from all the terrors and inequities of the past. Often people with those views are atheists, rebelling against the religious tyranny of the past. They have created Progress as a new religion. In essence they have thrown the baby out with the bath water. It's a phase necessary for those Souls to move through. They are seeing partial truth – they see the damaging hold that superstition and giving power away has had over much of humanity. And they rebel against that, rightfully so. The issue is, they have created a modern version of the same thing, yet another incomplete partial truth. But they are not yet in a place where they see the limitations of the perspectives they've adopted. Ultimately, somewhere along the line, they have to embrace a spiritual reality because that will represent the next step towards greater truth. But that can be a very long journey. Another thing the astrologer might consider is what unresolved hardships and traumatizations occurred to [her] the Soul during natural times and, even more so, during the transition into patriarchal times, that are the hidden memories that lead to her attitudes. "I don't want to go backwards!" is a very telling statement – it's an emotional statement. On a deeper level it is saying "I don't want to revisit the past". Why? Sometimes that is a tipoff to the forgotten, unresolved traumatic events from the past. If the Soul has to remember the past it knows it will have to deal with painful issues it's been avoiding forever.

One way to approach someone like that is to make it clear that revisiting the past does not mean we are going back to living in the jungle or in tipi's. Rather, ask her to consider if it's possible there might be anything at all of value from the past that has gotten lost with the transition into modern times that might be worth rediscovering. That she does not need to give up anything she now has to explore the past. Basically you are trying to find a place of receptivity to what lies beyond what she now knows, into an unknown. You can ask her what she fears she will lose by investigating – what is the potential cost? Fears are not rational, so if she responds with fear, ask her what she is afraid of. And if she states some fears, ask her why does she think she has those specific fears. Tell her what you are doing is the scientific method, to objectively examine and analyze what you find in her, to better understand it. And that this is the method that is used to develop the technology and science she believes in. You are applying that same methodology to objectively look into her inner emotional states. In other words, creating a frame that is aligned with her worldview that does not push her buttons. If you really want dialogue and to help her understand a bit more, you have to step into her worldview and accept it as she sees it. Then little by little perhaps you can help her expand from where she is now. (Steve)

Fear of losing Natural Laws

Q. Is there anything in EA that describes the fear a Soul may have of losing its understanding and internal realization of Natural Laws?

A. The Soul itself by way of its own memories in other lives that come forwards to the current moment of the Soul's life. Such memories will have been caused in a diversity of ways. Within this is the fact once the Soul exits any given life into the astral realm, and then is reborn in yet another life, the actual memories from all those prior lives is 'lost' in any conscious sense by way of the ego created in that new life. So in a given life a Soul can have X Y Z of various types of realizations that will propel its evolutionary journey forwards and, at the same time, fear that those realizations will not be remembered in another life to come because of the veil that is created from life to life that does not allow for the memories/realizations to be remembered. This is Soul stuff: Pluto, Scorpio, and the 8th house. (Rad)

Natural parenting

[The praise-punishment manner of raising children] is how the vast majority of children are being raised. Yet, we must also remember that the vast majority of people on this Earth do not have any conscious awareness of what is Natural, and what is not. Most humans have been so conditioned by all that is not natural that the very nature of that conditioning creates a reality in which that which is not natural is considered natural anyway. Thus, to be confronted with what is natural will then create a shock of recognition, because it is natural, then the guilt that comes from that recognition. And, yet, as JWG taught so often, the sense of psychological and emotional security for most humans is defined by the need to be self-consistent. So even when confronted by that which is natural, the shock of recognition that follows, there then is a typical defensiveness and denial because of the need to be self-consistent: the conditioning of what is 'normal' as defined by the consensus.

To admit that that which is natural would then require other admissions that would naturally lead to a state of awareness in most of how they have put phenomenal reality together is all wrong. All wrong. All of it. This would then in turn create a Soul angst, an existential anxiety of total insecurity. How many Souls are willing to go to that place? To literally start all over? Not too many. In fact I just read of a study in the USA that was born out of this incredible phenomena in that country of all these people who have made themselves 'believe' in an alternate reality that has nothing do with actual facts. The 'tea party' crowd is a perfect example of this, and those that still call themselves 'Republicans' in general as well. What these types of people have made themselves believe is total fiction, total delusion and illusions, that constitutes their actual reality. And when these people were then exposed to the actual facts that would of course defeat that alternate reality the typical reaction to those facts WAS TO DENY THOSE FACTS EVEN MORE, TO BECOME EVER MORE ENTRENCHED IN THEIR ALTERNATE REALITY AT ALL COSTS. This is the principle of self-consistency that JWG was teaching about for so long.

So of course, following all this, most parents have zero clue about what is natural, including NATURAL PARENTING. Most parents pass along their own conditioning to the kids of course, including how they themselves were raised. The function of natural guilt is to make us change whatever it is that we did to ignite the natural guilt in the first place. This is a NATURAL WAY OF LEARNING. It is a NATURAL WAY OF LEARNING DISCRIMINATION OF WHAT IS RIGHT AND WRONG. How many parents know this and then teach this to their children? Natural guilt is meant to make us feel 'bad' about ourselves. And yet how many parents use whatever it is that the child has done to create this guilt as a true teaching situation that allows the child to see what it has done is naturally wrong? To actually EMBRACE IT? And then to change their behavior naturally as a result? And when that behavior changes, based on the child's own recognition and desiring to change as a result, to extend to that child the type of LOVE that acknowledges the child's own recognition, and the change the child has made? The sad fact is that most parents pass along judgments to their children that reinforce man-made guilt rooted in the very nature of the conditioning patterns that define their reality: a reality that is not rooted in Natural Laws. It is this very fact that then causes the child to feel 'bad,' or that there is something 'wrong' with them, when they violate these man-made guilt associations. And that leads to the praise/punish syndrome. (Rad)

Natural roles for men and women

First, to me, there is no start point for the matriarchy. In fact what is called the matriarchy is a bit over-blown to me because all the people on Earth lived in a natural way, natural laws, that included the natural laws of men and women. Thus, the natural roles for women and men come from these natural laws. It is true that all issues relative to 'spiritual' matters were the domain of women who were typically regarded as the 'keeper of the flame.' Yet in those natural times there was no artificial God/ess that was ever conceived at all. All things in the natural world including spiritual issues were just that: natural. Thus the entire world of 'spirits' of all kinds is what the peoples of natural times understood, and lived by. Thus the role of the 'shaman' came from this time. Even all the 'shaman' until the patriarchy manifested were in fact women, not men: keepers of the flame. The first time a 'God' was conceived was exactly around the time of the transition from these natural times to the patriarchal times. The first actual conception for a Creator being that is called God/ess was in fact a feminine God: Namu. This was at the very beginning of the patriarchal time which of course gave way to all the patriarchal crap that followed that had the effect of completely distorting all things natural, including what we can call a Natural God/ess. (Rad)

It is important to understand the fact that the female produced the male in the first place for evolutionary reasons linked with necessary survival. JWG wrote quite a bit about this in his second book on Pluto that is all about relationships from an EA point of view that included a chapter on Pluto in Sagittarius wherein he talks about the natural laws that correlate to men and women. (Rad)

Gender switch

(Q) Is gender switch part of every soul's journey, and if not, then what is this a consequence of? Is this just part of natural law or is it the consequence of doing or not doing something in the past to create the current karmic reality?

(A) It is a function of natural laws. (Rad)

Male courting

Male courting is a result of patriarchal conditioning. JWG wrote an entire book on relationships: Pluto 2. In the Pluto in Sagittarius section there is quite a bit about the nature of the patriarchy/matriarchy in terms of what is natural, and what is not. (Rad)

Nature

Humans' separation from each other via distorted belief systems, as well as separation from other life forms on the planet includes the idea that humans are "superior" to other life forms, ie plants, animals, etc., instead of simply different from and interdependent. The idea of this kind of separateness – the DISTORTION of it – goes back to the Old Testament when humans were given "dominion over" nature. And that dominion over has created the destruction OF nature. Since the entire system IS interdependent, then we can see why humans' extinction is looming ahead of us. (Adina)

Daemon Soul

Daemon Souls, shamans, have evolved their state of consciousness to be in total unity within the consciousness of what many call Gaia: the total state, consciousness, of Nature manifesting in a variety of forms. In this unified consciousness the Daemon/Shaman Soul is thus aware of all the Natural Laws that exist in the time/space reality we call Earth. Being aligned and unified with these Natural Laws they are thus able to be in conscious relationships with the different states of consciousness as manifested in the various forms on Earth. The Daemon/Shaman Soul evolves, over time, into this total state of awareness. (Rad)

Consciousness of plants

Q. Do some plants have a malevolent consciousness?

A. No. All plants, as in any other form of life, have a natural instinct to survive and to reproduce in order for long term survival to occur. Thus, the 'strategies' that all forms of life, including plants, have learned by way of being in relationship to the totality of Creation itself on Earth are just that: learned strategies. How these strategies may be perceived and judged by humans has nothing to do with what the plants themselves are in fact doing in order to survive. (Rad)

Archetype of judgment (Capricorn) manifesting through Pisces

What JWG taught is that judgment as an archetype in human consciousness is natural, and that the archetype of judgment in and of itself is Capricorn, the 10th house, and Saturn. He taught that the issue is not the right or wrongness of judgment as such, BUT THE CONTENT USED TO MAKE JUDGMENTS IN THE FIRST PLACE. Is that content rooted in Natural Laws, or is that content merely a collection of all kinds of man-made laws that have nothing to do with Natural Laws. When the archetype of judgment that emanates from the 10th house, Capricorn, or Saturn manifests through the 12th house, Neptune, or Pisces that then can correlate with the judgments made about spiritual disciplines, practices, the 'rights and wrongs' of spiritual life, of various gods and goddesses, and, of course, one's own relationship to all things spiritual. He taught a lot about all the artificial man-made rules and laws concerning spiritual life, all the 'should be's' so to speak. And how any Soul who enters spiritual life where the nature of that spiritual life has been created and defined by man-made laws that the judgments made either through one's own inner judgment of itself, or judgments made and projected upon others and oneself, that this commonly leads to not being good enough as measured against these man-made spiritual doctrines. This is why he talked and taught so much about the difference between these man-created, patriarchal, spiritual disciplines and their 'teachings' versus what natural spirituality is, what the Natural Laws are, and thus to change the very nature of the CONTENT used to make the judgments in the first place. (Rad)
